

ADDED STARTERS . . . The Four Preps have been added to the galaxy of stars who will entertain more than 10,000 YMCA members and their families at Y-Day in Hollywood next Saturday. Other entertainers joining the Art Linkletter star list include Roy Rogers and Dale Evans, Jack Smith, the Hi-Lo's, Al Jarvis, Edd "Kookie" Byrnes, Connie Stevens, Roger Smith, and the Muzzy Marcellino band. The group will see the UCLA-Washington game in the afternoon.

Chamber President Issues 'Population Derby' Dare

The Torrance Chamber of Commerce has issued a challenge to the Chambers of Lynn, Mass., and Pueblo, Colo., to compete in the "Population Derby," President J. H. Paget said yesterday.

Sales Management Magazine rated all three cities at 99,000 as of Jan. 1, 1959. Although Torrance didn't reach this figure until an estimated Aug. 15, 1959 Paget said the local booster group would still "tackle" the Rocky Mountain and East Coast cities. The three rivals are fighting for the right to be rated as the nation's 141st city in population.

Paget said the Chamber is attempting to arouse public awareness in the tremendous population of Torrance.

"We're a sleeper," he said, "and because of the close proximity to the great metropolis of Los Angeles, we are often over looked."

Paget said Torrance's population, rated at 100,415 on Oct. 1, 1959 by the Los Angeles County Planning Commission is much larger than many famous cities in the nation.

"How many people know," the Chamber leader said, "that Torrance's population is over 5000 larger than cities like Schenectady, Wichita Falls, Charleston, Sioux City, and 10,000 larger than Fort Lauderdale, Davenport, Harrison, Burbank, St. Joseph, San Bernardino, Orlando, Stockton, Cedar Rapids, Raleigh, Pontiac, Santa Monica, and Racine?"

Famous cities that are over 20,000 smaller than Torrance include Portland, Maine; Waterloo, Iowa; Bethesda, Md.; Odessa, Texas; Evanston, Ill.; Mount Vernon, N. Y.; Richmond, Calif.; Colorado Springs, Colo.; Wilkes-Barre, Penn., and Bethlehem, Penn., he added.
